Degree availability and admission requirements vary by university and academic year. Current options are confirmed with each student during advising.

Understanding your university admission score

University admission requirements and scoring methods vary according to your previous education system, chosen degree and target university. We help you understand the criteria that apply to your application.

Academic record

Your previous studies are assessed according to the recognition and accreditation requirements that apply to your education system.

Accreditation & PCE

Depending on your access route and target university, you may need UNEDasiss accreditation and specific subject exams.

Degree-specific weightings

Relevant subjects may improve your admission score according to the weighting rules applied by your target degree and university.

Requirements depend on your route

The score required for admission, the examinations needed and the way results are calculated depend on your individual university access route.

Cut-off marks change each year

They depend on demand and the number of places available, so the same degree can have different cut-off marks from one year to the next.

Weighted subjects can raise your mark

The right subjects can add valuable points to your admission mark, depending on the degree and university you choose.

We help you plan your subject choices

Before you choose your subjects, we review recent cut-off marks and university weightings to help you build the strongest admission strategy for your target degrees.

Admission calculations may vary according to the student's education system, target university and degree. We confirm the applicable requirements individually.

The PCE exams: what you take and when

The PCE subjects you need depend on your education system and the admission requirements of your chosen university. Not every student follows the same subject combination or number of exams.

Subjects for your access route

Requirements vary by student and university

Depending on your admission route, subjects may include Spanish Language and Literature, a foreign language, History or Philosophy, and an appropriate mathematics or modality subject. Your final selection is confirmed individually.

Degree-weighted subjects

Chosen according to your university goals

Subjects such as Biology, Chemistry, Physics, Mathematics, Business Economics or Geography may contribute to your admission strategy, depending on the degree and university weightings.

Your subjects. Your admission plan.

We review your access route and your target degrees to identify the relevant PCE subjects and prepare a strategy suited to the applicable admission criteria.

ORDINARY EXAM SESSION

May / June

The main exam session. Most university places are allocated after this session, so passing it keeps you in the first admission round.

SEPTEMBER EXAM SESSION

September

For students taking the exam later or aiming to improve their mark. University options depend on the places still available.

Annual and Intensive Pathway prepare students for the ordinary 2027 PCE session. Summer Intensive Pathway targets the September 2027 session. Exact examination dates and course arrangements are subject to the official calendar and academic confirmation.

Build your preparation

Language skills and academic preparation, planned around your starting point.

Spanish language learning

Build the communication skills and academic Spanish needed for university study.

BEFORE YOU ASK

The questions students ask us

Six questions that come up in almost every first conversation. If yours is not here, just ask us.

What if my Spanish is below B1?

You start with a Spanish course and move on to the Pathway once you reach the required level.

Do I need to have finished school?

You can start in your final school year, but you need the completed qualification to apply.

Which subjects should I choose?

The subjects that count most towards your intended degree. We review the relevant university weightings with you.

Do I need a visa?

It depends on your nationality. We tell you which procedure applies before you enrol.

Can my family come with me?

Yes. If your family plans to travel with you, we can help with arrival information and local accommodation options.

What if I change my mind about the degree?

Your subject plan can be adjusted where possible. Tell your adviser as early as you can.

Take the next step towards university.

Tell us four things — your studies, your Spanish, your university plans and your timing — and we will come back with the route that fits you: the Spanish you need, the subjects to prepare and the dates to work towards.
